

Workshop Introduction: Building Reliable University Platforms

This workshop introduces students to the craft of designing software systems that stay clear under pressure. We will explore practical ideas behind API design, database consistency, background jobs, and graceful failure through the lens of a university workshop platform.

By the end, participants will understand how product choices become technical architecture, and how small design decisions shape trust for students, organizers, and staff.